

New door: Liberty Kitchen at the Treehouse

Sky-high dining room, wood-fired grill and delightful patio await

By Greg Morago Published 4:28 pm, Monday, October 17, 2016

ADVERTISEMENT

Ad closed by Google

IMAGE 1 OF 11

An interior view of Liberty Kitchen at the Treehouse, 963 Bunker Hill Rd., is shown Thursday, Sept. 15, 2016, in Houston. (Melissa Phillip / Houston Chronicle)

THE CONCEPT

The newest and most ambitious of the five Houston restaurants bearing F.E.E.D. TX Restaurant Group's Liberty

[X]

AdRoll works with brands to provide ads that are relevant and useful based on browsing information. We also believe in providing transparency & control over the type of ads that we show you. Please access the below links for more information.

More information & opt-out options »

What is interest based advertising »

AdRoll Privacy Notice »

Privacy Controls by Ghostery, Inc.

Kitchen name. Like the other Liberty stores, the design is playful, the menu vast and varied, and the vibe self-assured yet welcoming.

THE SPACE

Set inside the eco-friendly MetroNational office called the Treehouse in Memorial City, the double-height restaurant has an open dining area backed by a long counter where guests can sit and watch the kitchen staff. Generous booths to the left lead to a massive patio. Décor is an eclectic mix: Think chandeliers, Kelly green stools, bold wallpaper, homey tchotchkes, framed photography and an installation involving rulers by the Art Guys' Jack Massing. Some wall expanses are covered in reclaimed pine from a cotton factory on the Ship Channel; other surfaces are clad in antique siding from Victorian homes in the Heights. The "tree den" mezzanine level can host private events.

ADVERTISEMENT

THE FOOD

On the menu are Liberty signatures, such as queso; deviled eggs; raw oysters; Hawaiian poke; gumbo; macaroni and cheese iterations; and a burger. But there are also fresh ideas and a new plaything in the kitchen: a 14-foot-long wood-burning grill for expanded fish and meat offerings, as well as grilled oysters. Other new dishes: loaded hush puppies with chopped brats, cherry peppers, queso, bacon jam and hot sauce; fried shrimp and pork belly carnitas served with tortillas and fries; chicken cacciatore; coq au vin; a lamb cheeseburger; an $18.50 pork belly BLT featuring a half pound of dry-cured heritage bacon; and Dutch oven dishes cooked over coals, including cazuela of pork shoulder, chorizo and octopus.

ADVERTISEMENT

THE DRINKS

The cocktail menu includes drinks such as the Liberty Mule made with pineapple-infused vodka and ginger beer; the Bunker Hill Bloody Mary (pepper-infused vodka with house-made Bloody mix); and the Treehouse Toreado (anejo tequila, chile liqueur and St-Germain elderflower liqueur).

THE WORD

"This is, mechanically, one of the most sophisticated buildings in Houston," F.E.E.D. partner Will Davis said. Indeed, the MetroNational Treehouse has the distinction of being a LEED Platinum-certified building; it boasts geothermal cooling and heating; a green roof with solar panels; rainwater collection; and a wind turbine and rooftop garden.

ONE MORE THING

Shortly after opening, executive chef Travis Lenig left the F.E.E.D. fold to pursue his own restaurant (Field & Tides in the former Zelko Bistro space in the Heights). Lenig had worked with F.E.E.D. culinary director Lance Fegen to develop the menu, which remains in place under new executive chef Eric Laird.

THE DETAILS

963 Bunker Hill; 713-802-0533; libertykitchentreehouse.com. Open 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Friday, 8 a.m.-11 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m.-9 p.m. Sunday.

© 2016 Hearst Communications, Inc.

H E A R S T

